

Department of Journalism

The course of Journalism is sought by students from a number of departments in the college from the faculty of Arts and Science. It has been found that students' involvement and participation is high. The new CBCS Syllabus has widened the scope for the students. Journalism is offered as a generic elective paper where students from other disciplines may join in.

The course offers knowledge on Print, Radio, TV journalism and New Media as well as theoretical approaches to Journalism and Mass Communication studies. The course is designed in such a way that students are not only equipped with professional knowledge but are also inspired to go for higher studies.

The Department uses equipments and software of industry standard to impart professional knowledge to the students. They are given the advantage of using the multi-camera set up in the studio to learn online production and anchoring.

Ex-students are working in a number of regional and national media houses. The interest of the students towards journalism is ever increasing. Many students from the department of Mass Communication and Videography, English, Sociology, Political Science and Bengali are pursuing higher studies in Journalism in various universities and institutes in India as well as across the globe.
